Dulles Departs For Suez Talks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (U)—Secretary of State Dulles left for London and a new ambassador to Egypt was named today as the United States sought a peaceful solution to the Suez Canal crisis.

Dulles, before boarding an Air Force plane for the trip, said "we can be hopeful of achieving positive results" in the 22-nation London talks on the Suez situation.

He conferred earlier with President Eisenhower and reported they agreed there are "a good many formulas" for stabilizing international control of the canal.

Soviets May Attempt To Disrupt Plans

LONDON, Aug. 14 (U)—The Soviet Union was reported scheming tonight to wreck the 22-nation Suez Canal conference at the outset Thursday and substitute a bigger one on Soviet-Egyptian lines.

Reports of the Soviet maneuver came from Moscow as Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd insisted in a radio broadcast here that Britain would work for a peaceful solution of the canal control problem. He defended Britain's military show of force as precautionary.

Lloyd spoke shortly after Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov arrived and announced that the issue should be settled by "all the states concerned."

Britain, France and the United States invited 24 nations to discuss international control of the canal, whose operating company was nationalized by Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Greece and Egypt refused to attend.

The Soviet Union, in its qualified acceptance of the invitation last week proposed that 45 countries be invited to a parley. The list included all the European Communist countries and all the Arab nations.

Nasser, in rejecting the Western bid Sunday, also said that about 45 countries, including all those that regularly used the canal, should be included in any Suez conference.

Moscow sources said Shepilov planned at the opening of the conference to move for adjournment and a meeting somewhere else in the larger form suggested by Nasser. Shepilov was reported ready to announce that Russia would refuse to abide by decisions made in London on the ground that the conference is not competent to act without Egypt.

India's attitude toward the conference also figured in the maneuvering. Although India said it would attend, the reaction in New Delhi was that a conference without Egypt "was like a wedding without a bride."

Toll Bridge Hearing For Officials Today Platform Nears Showdown Proposal Passes By 5-1 Count

NEWTOWN, Pa., Aug. 14 (U)—A preliminary hearing is scheduled here tomorrow at 10 a. m. for five ex-officials of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission who are charged with misdemeanor in office.

The three former commission members and two employees are to appear before Justice of the Peace Leon H. Milnor. They also are charged with conspiracy to defraud the commission.

The five men are Alexander H. Miller, Easton, Pa., and Leslie Brown, Trenton, N. J., both former chairmen; R. Chapman Carver, Ivyland, Pa., former commission member; W. Willard Schwab, Levittown, Pa., former deputy comptroller, assistant treasurer and secretary.

Warrants

Warrants for their arrests were issued here after a probe of former Republican control of the commission by the present Pennsylvania Democratic Administration.

The bi-state agency handles Pennsylvania-New Jersey bridges across the Delaware River.

Governor Leader, in announcing the issuance of the warrants, charged "outrageous behavior" on the part of "some of the members and employees" of the commission.

Among charges specified in the warrants is one that a blonde Philadelphia night club dancer received "improper payments" from the commission. The dancer, Mrs. Nony Brandt, has been billed on night club posters as "Miss TNT from Gay Paree." She said she did stenographic work for the commission.

Other alleged wrongdoings are the payment of salaries by commission members to themselves, contrary to law; giving lavish parties with commission funds, and padding expense accounts.

Miller is charged with receiving improper salary of $47,125; Carver of $19,800 and Brown of $11,668.

When the warrants were issued Brown stated that he already had brought suit in Common Pleas Court for a declaratory judgment on the legality of the salaries, with the announced intention of repaying the money if the salary were found to be illegal.

Purchase

Brown also was accused of buying expensive chinaware for the commission from a china firm of which he is president.

Miller is charged with misusing and spending excessively commission funds for trips by himself and others to San Francisco, Atlantic City, McAllen, Tex.; Phoenix, Ariz., and Las Vegas, Nev.

Carver was named in the charge mentioning strip teases Nony Brandt. He was accused of "improper payments" of commission money to her.

The charges allege that Haney and Schwab did "falsely and maliciously conspire and agree to cheat and defraud the commission of its moneys."

'Betsy' Causes Damage

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (U)—Democratic convention platform drafters neared a showdown tonight on the smoldering civil rights issue.

Dixie delegates, striving for a party racial stand the South "can live with," kept their state groups largely unpledged or behind favored son candidates for the presidential nomination.

The South's refusal so far to choose between the two leading contenders, Adlai Stevenson and Averell Harriman, is frankly intended to give it bargaining position on the drafting of a civil rights plank for the platform.

But Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, who advocates a strong party stand for racial equality and recognition of the Supreme Court decision on school desegregation, sounded a note of alarm.

He said unless "liberal forces" consolidate, the party nomination could be determined by a minority bloc. He said the convention was "drifting dangerously" with increasing possibility of "a deadlock with unforeseeable results."

The 17-member Platform Drafting Committee has been saving the civil rights issue for its last item of business. Party leaders arranged this in hopes of a compromise that would avoid an open convention fight and jeopardize party unity in November.

The time is now at hand for the drafting group to move fast. It must finish its job tonight or early tomorrow so the full 100-member Platform Committee can give its okay and send the completed work to the convention floor tomorrow night.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (U)—Joseph A. McDonough, Pennsylvania AFL president, cast his lot today with Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His vote, together with that of John B. Kelly, Philadelphia contractor, pushed the openly committed Pennsylvania total for Stevenson to 60 1/2 votes. The two previously were uncommitted.

However, Gov. Leader figured the Stevenson strength in the delegation at 62 1/2 or 63 votes. But he wouldn't identify the Harriman delegates who may have switched since the Sunday night show of hands in a caucus.

The Pennsylvania delegates to the Democratic convention were guests tonight of Joseph S. Clark Jr., Democratic senatorial nominee, who will oppose Sen. Duff, Republican, in November.

Clark described his reception as a "goodwill gesture."

Rep. Francis E. Walter, Easton congressman and a long-time Harriman adherent, was critical of Leader's attempts to line up more Stevenson votes.

"I don't think the extremely coercive measures that are being used have been effective," Walter said.

Asked if he knew whether the governor was making outright patronage threats to Harriman backers, Walter replied:

"That's putting it mildly."

But Leader's only reaction was that he was chairman of the delegation and "I am leading it."

No Indication

There appeared to be no indication that the Harriman bloc within the delegation was gaining any strength beyond the 11 votes pledged Sunday.

Frank F. Hausman, Allentown automobile dealer, said he didn't know of any change—"either up or down"—from the previous poll.

There were rumors that Hausman had swung his support to Stevenson but he insisted:

"I'm for Harriman until Harriman gives up. No Stevenson for me before that."

Sepaker H. G. Andrews (D—Cambria), of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, a pro-Harriman sparkplug, contended Harriman may pick up some strength before the convention's first roll call Thursday. The Harriman total may run as much as 25 votes, he said.

Pennsylvania has 148 members in its delegation. Each has a half vote.

McDonough broke the news of his pro-Stevenson sentiment on the convention floor. He pinned a tiny blue Stevenson button on his coat lapel.

"Are you for Stevenson?" a newsman asked.

"There you are," he said, pointing to his Stevenson button with a broad smile.

Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, Democratic national committeeman, joined in the smile and said he had welcomed McDonough into the Stevenson ranks earlier in the day.

McDonough wouldn't say if he planned to solicit support for Stevenson from labor leaders who are backing Harriman.

About half of the 22 delegates favoring Harriman come from the ranks of labor.

Officials Call For Investigation

MONTICELLO, Utah, Aug. 14 (U)—Officials of this southeastern Utah town called today for state experts to decide what caused a savage explosion that splintered a jammed cafe, killing 15 patrons.

At least 25 persons were injured.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (U)—Signs that Adlai Stevenson was picking up some speed in his drive toward the presidential nomination appeared tonight as the Democratic party moved into the fourth session of its national convention.

Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio declared he won't go for Gov. Averell Harriman, Stevenson's chief rival, and a potent New Jersey leader predicted most of that state's 36 votes would plump for Stevenson.

Former President Truman, plugging away for Harriman, said he's doing so because he does not think Stevenson could win the presidency in the November election showdown.

Stevenson had nothing to say about this remark, but his aides shrugged it off as altogether unlikely to affect the convention.

Gov. Lausche, after a visit with Truman, was asked if he would back Harriman, the man the ex-President says is "best qualified."

"Not for the nomination," Lausche replied.

Favorite Son

Lausche, a favorite son candidate with about 54 of Ohio's 58 votes behind him, said flatly he won't accept a vice presidential nomination. He has indicated he expects to keep his favorite son candidacy alive for several ballots.

However, former Sen. James W. Huffman, an Ohio delegate, said a majority of the state's vote will go to Stevenson as soon as released by Lausche.

Other tidings of welcome import to Stevenson camp came from within the New Jersey delegation. Dennis Carey, Essex County leader, predicted most of the state's votes would be found in the Stevenson column on the first ballot.

He said Gov. Robert B. Meyner favors Stevenson over Harriman and the New Jersey group will go along with the governor. Previous reports have said Meyner dallied with the idea of becoming a favorite son candidate on the initial ballot.

Whether Stevenson could be stopped for keeps was a much different question. The former Illinois governor still had a far more impressive list of votes committed to him than Harriman or any of the favorite sons.

Campaigns of both the Stevenson and Harriman camps spluttered along uncertainly, with neither crunching out major gains. It wasn't because the two contenders weren't trying. They were as busy as ever tugging at sleeves of delegates and pouncing on anybody showing any sign at all of leaning one way or the other.

But some complete delegations, mainly in the South, clung to strategic positions astride the fence.

Battling

Former President Harry S. Truman, battling for Harriman's cause with all his influence and prestige, said today that "I'm trying my best" to keep Stevenson from being nominated because "I don't think he can win" the November election. He said he believes Harriman can.

In his strongest anti-Stevenson statement yet, Truman told reporters he didn't think the former Illinois governor "can win a single state in addition to those he carried in 1952." Stevenson carried only nine South and border states against President Eisenhower four years ago.

If Stevenson is nominated, Truman said, "I'll support him and try to help him carry some other states."

Stevenson's campaign manager, James Finnegan, told newsmen that "I do not" think Truman's opposition will affect Stevenson's chances for capturing the nomination.

Divorce Filed

The wide-mouthed actress failed last week in an effort to obtain a divorce from her fifth husband, Edward T. Begley, a dancer. Miss Raye's divorce petition was dismissed by Circuit Judge Stanley Milledge on grounds that he lacked jurisdiction because she hadn't fulfilled Florida's residence requirements.

Miss Raye's bodyguard, Robert O'Shea, ex-policeman from Westport, Conn., reportedly had been seen in the Miami area recently but he did not appear in court with her last Friday.

Vote On Strike

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (U)—Members of 11 unions of railroad non-operating employees are voting on whether to strike for a wage increase, George E. Leighty, chairman of the union's joint negotiating committee said today.

Some 900,000 workers are represented by the unions. They are clerks, telegraphers and others who do not actually operate trains. The vote is expected to be completed by Sept. 7, Leighty said.

ADLAI STEVENSON is shown in Chicago with one of his warmest supporters, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. The widow of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt has consistently backed Stevenson for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

New Disturbance Replaces Fading Hurricane 'Betsy'

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 14 (U)—A hurricane threat to the Eastern United States diminished today but weather forecasters began watching another "suspicious area" that developed in the same locality where Betsy was spawned last Friday.

Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster at the Miami Weather Bureau, said "New England has nothing to worry about from this hurricane (Betsy)."

Hurricane warnings went down all along the Florida coast and Dunn said that if Betsy continues the present curvature the storm will swing away from the U.S. mainland.

At 5 p.m. Betsy was centered near Latitude 27.0 North and Longitude 76.8 West or about 190 miles east of Stuart, Fla., moving toward the northwest at only 9 miles per hour.

Dunn said the new suspicious area was in "much the same place" where Betsy came to life. Ship reports indicated winds of 30 knots and Dunn added, "It's something we'll have to watch."

A hurricane "watch" on Betsy continued from Vero Beach, Fla., to Brunswick, Ga., and vessels in the storm's path were told to exercise caution.

Overdose Of Pills For Martha Raye

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Aug. 14 (U)—An overdose of sleeping pills sent Martha Raye, 39, comedienne and television actress, to a hospital today in what her personal physician described as "critical" condition.

Dr. Ralph Robbins said Miss Raye had been despondent for the past week and had taken about 20 sleeping pills.

The actress was found unconscious on the floor of her bedroom at 3 a.m., half an hour after she had come home. A Negro maid said she found Miss Raye lying beside an empty bottle of pills.

Divorce Filed

The wide-mouthed actress failed last week in an effort to obtain a divorce from her fifth husband, Edward T. Begley, a dancer. Miss Raye's divorce petition was dismissed by Circuit Judge Stanley Milledge on grounds that he lacked jurisdiction because she hadn't fulfilled Florida's residence requirements.

Miss Raye's bodyguard, Robert O'Shea, ex-policeman from Westport, Conn., reportedly had been seen in the Miami area recently but he did not appear in court with her last Friday.

Vote On Strike

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (U)—Members of 11 unions of railroad non-operating employees are voting on whether to strike for a wage increase, George E. Leighty, chairman of the union's joint negotiating committee said today.

Some 900,000 workers are represented by the unions. They are clerks, telegraphers and others who do not actually operate trains. The vote is expected to be completed by Sept. 7, Leighty said.

The drafting group meanwhile completed its business policy and labor planks.

The first accuses the Republican party of being "an instrument of special privilege" and says that President Eisenhower's administration has allowed giant corporations to "dominate our economy."

Business

"We pledge ourselves to the restoration of truly competitive conditions in American industry...to curb corporate mergers contributing to growth of economic concentration," this plank says.

It pledges stricter enforcement of antitrust laws to curb monopolies and help for small and independent business, including tax and credit aid.

The labor plank draft repeats the Democrats' 1952 pledge to work for full repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, and pledges to write a new labor relations law based on "past experience" and the former Wagner Act.

It advocates a big jump in the dollar-an-hour federal minimum wage. It says a Democratic-controlled Congress only last year raised the figure from 75 cents an hour over Eisenhower's objection. A new hike to "at least $1.25 an hour" is pledged to "more closely approximate present day needs."

The labor plank says "the vicious antitrust character of the Taft-Hartley law was expressly recognized by candidate Eisenhower during the 1952 election campaign." But it says Eisenhower failed "utterly to keep a promise to eliminate 'unjust' T-H provisions."

Proposal Passes By 5-1 Count

EAST STROUDSBURG borough council last night gave its official blessing to the State's proposed $10-million Thruway after receiving a request from a top highway official that such action be taken.

Approval was given on a 5-1 roll call vote. Councilmen Thomas Sexton, Herbert Rupprecht, Robert Staples, Herman Smeltz and Roy Lloyd voted in the affirmative. Only Councilman Harold Wiggins rejected the proposal.

Earlier the Stroudsburg Borough Council went on record favoring the State's plan.

The State's plan for the East Stroudsburg phase of the Thruway, as drafted by Gannett, Fleming, Condray and Carpenter, calls for two interchanges, one at Minisink Hills, and the other at Prospect St.

Although the East Stroudsburg Merchants Association has favored both interchanges, an energetic group of E. Brown St. residents have been active in opposing the Prospect St. interchange.

After last night's meeting, Henry S. Evans, spokesman for the E. Brown St. group said he and other opponents still believe they are right, and will meet again.

Council took this action after receiving a letter from Chief Engineer Arthur L. Wiesenberger, which was requested by the council at the suggestion of the E. Brown St. group.

"The department will appreciate council's taking action... affirming the line presently proposed," Wiesenberger wrote.

Request

The highway official made this request for the following reasons:

1—Engineers have "studied intensively" the line shift proposed by the E. Brown St. critics and believe it is "not feasible."

2—A number of graves at the Catholic cemetery would have to be disturbed under the alternate proposal, and the department "will absolutely not consider" such a situation.

3—The steep slopes resulting from construction along the alternate line would also be "a difficult condition to control."

"One of the factors in our studies which dictated the adoption of the line recommended by us was serviceability of the proposed interchange in the Prospect St. area," Wiesenberger said further.

The chief engineer said a majority of the residents of the twin boroughs favor the proposed line and, therefore, "no revision will be adopted."

"The interests and safety of all of the people of the Commonwealth must always transcend those of the few who may be inconvenienced or whose property may be damaged by an improvement," Wiesenberger concluded.

No sooner had Borough Solicitor Charles Bensinger finished reading the letter than did Councilman Smeltz move that council adopt the plan as submitted by the State. It was seconded by Councilman Staples.

Council quickly adopted the motion on roll call vote, after including an amendment suggested by Chief Burgess Jesse R. S. Flory that council request the State to restudy the Minisink Hills interchange with the view of eliminating the left turn into Route 196.

Shortly after the motion was adopted, a delegation from the Building Trades Council appeared to register their support in favor of the proposal.

Spokesman for the group noted that the project "means money to the Building Trades Council and to all the crafts."

"We don't want to see any work lost in the area because of an argument," he said.

Question

Dr. Morton Spinner, another member of the E. Brown St. group, asked council if the borough would replace water lines, drainage pipes and roads for properties affected by the project.

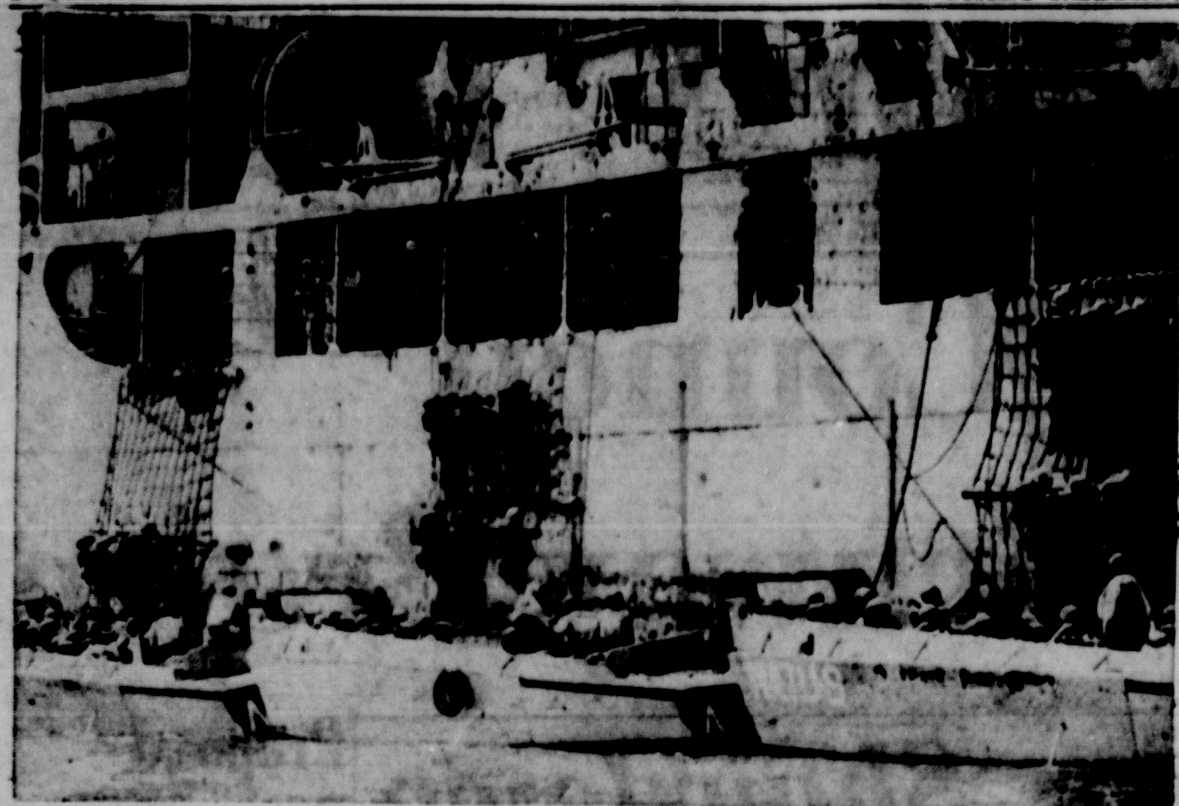

"That's a question for the engineers," replied Burgess Flory.

Later, E. Brown St. representatives expressed "amazement" over (Please turn to page five)

Viewing the Screens

BATTLE BETWEEN Adlai Stevenson and Averell Harriman continues with voices piping up for one or the other side. Former President Harry Truman started the ball rolling Sunday when he endorsed Harriman. David McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers has pledged Harriman. AFL-CIO Vice President Walter Reuther has announced his support of Stevenson, as did a number of others directly following Truman's statement of support of Harriman: Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Pennsylvania Gov. George Leader and Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh and of course Estes Kefauver. In a last-minute interview on television Monday night, Martin Agronsky found that representatives from each camp are expecting early victory—the second or third ballot—time will tell which, if either, is right.

Consumer Should Have Some Power In Determining Fair Trade Prices

An Allentown department store was fined $500 Monday for violating a court order directing it to observe the so-called fair trade laws.

The store had been ordered not to sell a specified brand of electric steam iron for less than the fair trade price of $15.95. In selling the irons for $10, the store deliberately flouted the court order as it pressed its campaign to eliminate Pennsylvania's law which permits price-fixing.

Many states have these fair trade laws. They are defended on the ground that the small shopkeeper should have "protection" against large-volume dealers and the "loss leader" type of price-cutting.

The defenders do not care to discuss the cost of this price-fixing to the consuming public. Indeed, some of them are given to making speeches extolling our competitive system of free enterprise.

There can be no competition and no free enterprise in a circumstance where a minimum selling price is forced on the retailer. Neither does it make any sense economically.

Changes In Uniform Traffic Code Sought In Drive Against Rising Highway Toll

In an effort to halt the nation's headlong rush into the most calamitous traffic toll of all time by the end of 1956, the National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances is calling on state legislatures throughout the country to establish absolute maximum speed limits and give law enforcement officers more sweeping on-the-spot arrest powers.

The committee's approval of these changes in the Uniform Traffic Code coincided with the National Safety Council's announcement that traffic fatalities in the nation have consistently increased for the 16th consecutive month and are threatening to reach an all-time high of 42,000 deaths for 1956. This action is considered as particularly significant by traffic accident specialists because the committee membership consists of the official representatives of federal, state and municipal traffic law enforcement executives as well as business and industry interests.

The first of the two major changes calls for the abandonment of prima facie speed laws in favor of absolute limits and would greatly simplify enforcement of speed laws. Under the newly recommended system, any motorist exceeding the maximum speed established by law would be guilty of a traffic violation. Under the prima facie law, a motorist charged with speeding can not be judged guilty of a violation unless the arresting officer is able to prove that, under the conditions existing at the time of the arrest, such speed was unsafe. It further recommended that under the most favorable circumstances, the maximum speed should not exceed 60 miles an hour in rural areas or 30 miles an hour in built-up areas, with downward zoning to meet local conditions.

Truman's Influence Cannot Be Measured Until After Election; Differs With Adlai

No one can accurately forecast the full effect of Harry Truman's endorsement of Averell Harriman until after Election Day.

What it means immediately is that Truman has attempted to fill an obvious vacuum in the Democratic ticket. Harry Truman has a long and distinguished leadership. During the next day or two, his leadership may or may not be followed. If it is, not only will Harriman be nominated but Truman will decide what the platform of the Democratic Party is to be and what the legislative program is to be in the event the Democrats are successful in the Presidential Election.

Truman has a reputation as a smart politician. In 1948, both the Republicans and Democrats were sure that Truman would be defeated and that Thomas E. Dewey would be elected. Truman took that certainty in his stride. He went to the people and Dewey was defeated. In 1952, Truman could have run despite the 22nd Amendment which did not apply to him. But Truman could not have been re-elected in 1952 and he knew it. He did not run. Stevenson did and was defeated.

Truman obviously does not like Stevenson, possibly because of his egghead polish which does not sit well on a Midwestern personality. And when he drops his mannerisms, what remains is not as attractive. At any rate, in 1952, Stevenson kept Harry Truman out of the campaign until it was very late, too late. Eisenhower did better by Robert A. Taft, bringing him into the campaign from the very start and giving him the widest latitude. So the Democrats were united, but the Republicans were split asunder. And it can be assumed that Harry Truman never forgot Stevenson's coldness to him. Harry is the sort of person who does not forget.

One important difference between Stevenson and Truman may be summarized in the word, moderation. Harry Truman does not know what that word means. He believes that to defeat an opponent, it is necessary to fight him with every weapon in the arsenal, to knock him down and out, if possible. He believes that the Democrats can defeat the Republicans no matter who runs on the Republican ticket, but such a defeat can only be accomplished if the Democrats fight hard. Harry Truman does not like a polite fighter. He has said so many times.

That is why Harry Truman wants to be in the campaign. He wants to be an active man in the campaign. He wants to make speeches all over the country. He can do that if Harriman runs; he cannot do that if Stevenson runs. Harriman does not resent Truman's increasing popularity; Stevenson seeks public acclaim for himself.

I witnessed a similar incident in the 1936 and 1940 campaigns when Herbert Hoover was given the cold shoulder by the Republicans. Although Hoover made a national commission reports. "That she blows!"—and goes! Twice as many brunets as golden-haired girls were entered in the "Miss Universe" contest at Long Beach, Calif. Most gentlemen prefer blondes but not, apparently if they're beauty judges.

Four Canadian TV station employees reported someone took a potshot at them as they drove to work. Cop suspect an irate listener. What do they mean "suspect"?

Fair trade laws attempt to insure a certain profit to some categories of business, in complete disregard of whether the consumer is getting a fair deal.

The Allentown retailer said his firm bought a certain brand of watches at $36.50, yet is required by fair trade laws to sell them at $79.50.

No wonder "discount houses" can offer such astounding bargains. Simply by taking what most people would consider a reasonable profit, they are able to do well.

While proper steps should be taken to protect the small merchant from getting squeezed out of business in a price-cutting war, it would seem the consuming public as well as the manufacturer and the seller should have a voice in determining what constitutes "fair trade."

Perhaps a regulatory body could be set up to chart a course that would be fair to the consumer, the manufacturer and the seller. If composed of equal representation from each of the interested groups, results that would meet with the approval of everyone concern could be expected.

Right Age For Marrying Is When True Love Hits

Margaret Truman Daniel, who married last April at age 32, did her unmarried contemporaries a good turn. Namely, by waiting confidently for Mr. Right—even though that score and ten birthdays was making matchmakers a little nervous.

"What is the right age for a girl to marry?" is a question bothering poli-takers, worried mamas and psychologists occupied with quibbling over happy marriages. The right age, friends, is the age one is when the right guy comes along. Period. Paragraph. And I don't know what earthly good it is setting up arbitrary age limits, before which the young lady should wait and beyond which she should give up hope.

There is no one and only "Mr. Right," says cool-headed psychologists, dubbing this One Alone idea pure sham. Any lad who has approximately the same background socially, educationally and whose personality does not include quips too startling (like snake-collecting, work-rejecting, or woman-chasing) is quite sound husband material. If he is adjudged "suitable" why shouldn't he do as well as any?

I say nonsense. What ever happened to love? Without a love profound for this gent, what woman could be happy through years of picking up after him, letting him edge ideas she thought of first, listening to his favorite and immutable set of jokes, comforting him after hangovers, listening while he excoiates (1) all Republicans or (2) all Democrats and maintain her fixed resolves to vote as she darn please anywhere?

Without love, what woman could endure the times which every marriage encounters? Times of too little money, too much money (these aren't really so rough as some make out and don't let anyone fool you about that). Times of grief and illness and doubt and what-on-earth-are-we-going-to-do-about-these awful children who inherited all the bad traits of your family?

Girls, if you forget all about the "right" age to marry, if you adopt the handy attitude that after 22, everything is relative—particularly birthdays—you will stand a better chance of making the "right" decision. True enough, there is no one-and-only in this world you could be happy with, but there's a one-and-only at the time. If, for some strange masculine reason, romance does not flower and you lose him, always adopt the handier attitude of better luck next time. But if things work out as hoped, what's the harm in believing him to be Charm Boy, Mr. Right, Mr. One-Only—him?

Don't forget the word order "to love and to cherish." Without love, cherishing ain't so easy. And if there is such a thing as the right age to marry, surely it must be just whatever age you are when you find him. I mean, when he finds you.

Try and Stop Me

Television writers are subjected to frequent network censorship, some of it baffling indeed. For instance, one censor insisted that the word "avocado" be eliminated from a script. "Why?" demanded the writer. The censor answered coldly, "My dear fellow, have you ever SEEN an avocado?" and marched majestically out of the room. The writer is still trying to figure it out.

Mrs. Roosevelt Rebukes HST For Backing Harriman

Chicago, August 11: Two dramatic episodes vividly portray what is actually transpiring at this spectacularly volatile Democratic convention.

They strikingly underline that old political truism that the public pronouncements may make the headlines. But what is said and done in private is what actually determines what happens and why.

Separately and collectively these incidents graphically display the temper and tenor of this history-making inside story as follows:

Would-be "Kingmaker" Harry Truman will long remember the luncheon chat he had with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

In her most friendly manner the former first lady gave Truman a dressing down that left him literally speechless. When she got through telling him off, he had nothing to say.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the former President had this extraordinary talk shortly after her press conference in which she sharply rebuffed Truman's "Kingmaking" in behalf of Governor Harriman. Truman smilingly remarked he had heard she disapproved of his bombshell against Adlai Stevenson.

"I am glad you did," she smiled back, "because perhaps you can tell me the process of reasoning by which you reached the conclusion that Governor Stevenson is not prepared to take over the presidency, especially in the light of your own experience in that regard."

"Oh, I didn't mean that," protested Truman. "I didn't mean to imply he isn't competent to be President."

"Well, if you didn't mean that," asked Mrs. Roosevelt, "then just what were you trying to do?"

"I was trying to stir things up," explained Truman. "Put some life and fight in this convention. It had no punch, no drive. There was no fighting."

"Fighting with whom?" demanded Mrs. Roosevelt. "Democrats?"

"Certainly not between us," said Truman gently. "Don't worry, Mrs. Roosevelt, you'll see. In the end you and I will be together."

"But will the Democratic Party be together," she retorted. "That is what counts, and not you and I. It doesn't matter whether you and I are together or not. But it matters a great deal, at least to me, whether when you get through the Democratic Party is together."

There was a long silence, and then Truman changed the subject.

Note: At a closed door meeting of the Platform Committee, Mrs. Roosevelt sharply opposed the use of force to end segregation in schools. She sharply routed Governor Harriman for urging that.

saying: "It would be wrong, terribly wrong, for the Federal Government to resort to force to enforce the Supreme Court's decision outlawing segregation in schools. Governor Harriman was on very unsound ground in advocating that." This declaration drew prolonged applause from the northern and southern committeemen. All of them rose when Mrs. Roosevelt left the room escorted by Chairman John McCormack, Mass., who arranged for her appearance.

Curious Question: The second significant episode was a mysterious telephone call by Truman. Several hours before he erupted in behalf of Governor Harriman, the former President rang up Rep. Clarence Cannon, fellow Missourian, noted parliamentarian, and chairman of the mighty House Appropriations Committee.

"Clarence," began Truman, "I am looking for some information. Can an individual be nominated for President without his name being put into nomination? Would that be legal?"

"It would be legal," replied Cannon. "All that is necessary to win the nomination at this convention is to get 688½ votes. Anyone who gets that number of votes becomes the Democratic candidate for President."

"Thank you," said Truman. "That is what I wanted to know."

"What have you in mind?" asked Cannon. There was no answer. Truman had hung up.

In a forty minute talk with Senator Hubert Humphrey, Truman warmly assured the militant young Minnesotan that he not only favored him for vice president but even higher.

"By all means try for running mate," Truman told Humphrey. "I am for you 100 percent. You are my kind of Democrat, a fighting, liberal Democrat. That is what we need. That is the only way we can win this election. Why, Hubert, I would be for you for President. You would suit me to a tee on that."

Later, Truman counseled Rep. Eugene McCarthy, Minn., Humphrey's campaign manager, for 35 minutes on how to put him over.

Note: At a dinner meeting of the Democratic National Committee, a poll showed 19 members disapproved of Truman's declaration for Harriman; seven favored it; and another seven were non-committal.

Now that the round of Firemen's Carnivals have reached the finish line, it's time to remember the big fairs.

These fairs will feature the farmers and their products, but there's something of interest for everyone.

N. Y. Confidential —By Lee Mortimer

It Can't Happen There (Or Can It): Those who fear the growing power of the Mountbattens in England and especially the ambitions of the Duke of Edinburgh who has come in for severe editorial censure because of his "un-constitutional" injections of himself into local and international political issues, are nervous about the appointment of Philip's uncle, Lord Mountbatten, as supreme commander of the armed forces in the upcoming Suez crisis. They point out that Mountbatten, who is extremely palsy and even walsy with Nehru, the Hindu fakir, is the guy who liquidated the British empire in the Orient and turned over the balance of power there to the Chinese Reds. . . . As fantastic as it seems, and I don't believe it either, there is a large segment of well-informed people in England who fear an Edinburgh coup of some kind. When they see the Navy, Army and RAF all under the command of his kinsman, they get the jitters, especially with Philip orating daily before left-wing labor meetings and courting the sans culottes with demagogic rantings.

Doing What Comes Naturally: Kitty Kelly Tannenbaum and Dick Haynes holding hands at Frank Harris' romantic Eden Roc where it seems to be a habit, because Danny Arstein's lovely daughter, Toni Austin, the model, was ditto with Ian Woodner, the millionaire builder, but aren't they all? (I mean millionaires!) . . . Warners built up a "romance" between Natalie Woods and Tab Hunter as a box-office stunt and never figured they would fall in love. Now wouldn't it be funny if they ran off and got married and spoiled the young-girl and boy angle (is this important?) . . . Lois Ann Thau, College Queen from Syracuse—in the running for Miss National College Queen—improving her mind with sportsman Artie Britten, and just what is a sportsman, pray?

Today's Mortimer Medallion: (This—and a reffer—sends you to far-away places.) To my friend, Gon Sam Mue, the fabulous U. S. Narcotics agent, who for several decades was the only peace officer of Chinese descent on the American mainland and quite as celebrated as Charlie Chan, with whom he was often compared. Sam (his Anglicized name is Sam Gon) was forced to retire a few years ago when dread multiple-sclerosis did to him what the toughest Mafia and Tong hoods never could and laid him low. He lives in San Francisco with his lovely wife, Sue, completely paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair, where he's writing his fantastic memoirs on a typewriter, built especially for him by IBM. Despite his tragedy, he's as dauntless as ever, attends banquets, is interviewed on TV, and recently had a series written about him in a national magazine. He is an honor to Commr. Anslinger's dedicated (but sadly undermanned and under-appropriated) U. S. Narcotics Bureau, and I am proud to know him. (Sam deserves a medal from his Uncle Sam.)

Stroudsburg Borough Councilmen Approve Parking Survey

$3,400 To Be Spent For Study

STROUDSBURG Borough Council has approved the expenditure of $3,400 for an engineering survey to determine whether off-street parking facilities are needed and would be financially feasible.

The borough parking authority, headed by Dr. Samuel F. Sullivan, is expected to award the contract today to the consulting firm of Gannett, Fleming, Corddry and Carpenter of Harrisburg.

Another offer to make the study for $5,000 was submitted to the authority by Michael Baker, Jr., Inc., of Rochester, Pa.

Robert Davenport, authority secretary, said Gannett, Fleming, Corddry and Carpenter is exceptionally familiar with Stroudsburg's parking and traffic situation because the firm made the initial plans for the proposed $10-million Thruway.

Under the contract, the consultants will furnish all required personnel, except for a real estate appraiser.

Inventory

It will conduct a field inventory of all curb and off-street parking spaces in the business area, and prepare a map showing these spaces. It will also conduct two surveys of present parking practices in the business area—one in August, the other in October, at the peak and low periods.

The firm will also analyze this survey and surveys previously made by the State, as well as any other information available, in order to determine the existing parking situation and to compare it with standards of demand based on traffic, sales, and other economic factors.

The consultants will further analyze possible sites for off-street parking facilities, including the cost of development, parking demand, probable usage, revenue and economics of development. It will also recommend the type, size and location of any new off-street parking facilities that are deemed desirable to meet the demand, including a financial feasibility study, preparation of functional plans and operational procedures for the sites.

When completed, the firm will also furnish the authority with 35 copies of the report showing the results of its study.

Davenport indicated that the study will probably be completed by November.

Former Members At Club Meeting

STROUDSBURG Lions met last night at Allen Roth's Charcoal House on Route 611 with president Harold L. Miller in charge.

Guests included Owen Stiff, former local Lion who is now third vice president of the Harrisburg club and Tom DeVivo, now living in Florida. Club members welcomed back Joseph McCluskey, vice president, after a period of hospitalization.

President Miller informed the club of the illness of Russell Shiffer, club member and former treasurer. E. M. Rahn reported that the sick committee has sent Shiffer flowers on behalf of the club.

Most of the business session was devoted to discussion of a meeting arranged for Tuesday, Aug. 28 at the Paradise Valley Summer home of Benjamin Williams, former club president. Williams will be host at the meeting with Edward Driebe, another former president, as co-chairman.

Members were invited to come early for the meeting. Route for reaching Williams' home was announced.

Carnival

This afternoon the club will take part in the annual water carnival at East Stroudsburg playground pool. Miller asked members to attend. Trophies and certificates will be awarded. Ice cream will be served by club members.

Announcement of winners of awards at the recent Stroudsburg playground show was made. Citizenship awards went to: Truman Burnett Jr., Carol Sabinsky and Lucille Davis. Swimming awards were given to: Patricia Everitt, best all-around girl swimmer; John Gilpin, best all-around boy swimmer and Susan Buck, greatest improvement during season.

At the close of the meeting Miller reminded members that the club is sponsoring the annual service club outing at Camp Tami-met. He urged all members to attend the event slated for later this season.

Fruit Experiment

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 14 (AP)—The government fermentation institute plans to experiment with the use of tropical fruits in making wine. Brazil has many fruits which are eaten inside the country but are virtually unknown outside. Few will stand shipping; so the only way to use them for export would be to make them into wine.

Malleson Plays Host To Community Chest Workers

RESORT DIVISION WORKERS in the 1956-57 Community Chest campaign attended a luncheon meeting this week at Skytop Lodge.

Host to the workers was William W. Malleson Jr., manager of Skytop and director of the resort phase of the Chest drive.

William W. Malleson

Letters to camps and resorts in the county are now being sent out from Chest headquarters over Malleson's signature. No definite goal for the resort division has been set. The Chest's overall goal this year is $74,757.

Assistants

Assisting Malleson in the resort drive is Mrs. Mary Vanderwheel. Leon Koster, East Stroudsburg, is in charge of solicitation of camps in the area.

Among the sub-division of the resort phase are camps, motels, hotels and boarding houses in the county. The entire resort solicitation has been divided into sections for purposes of this year's campaign.

Another new change in the current drive will be the use of various volunteers to visit resorts after letters have been sent. In the past the Chest has concentrated its solicitations in one person who visited or attempted to visit all existing vacation facilities in the mountains.

Malleson is a veteran fund-raising chairman and worker in Monroe County. He is one of the organizers of the Barrett Township Welfare Fund and has been active in setting up that township's United Fund Drive.

He is now serving as second vice president of the Monroe County Community Chest and Council board of directors. He has been a director of the Chest the past several years. Following last year's record-shattering Chest campaign, he worked with Clifford Gilliam, Buck Hill Falls, on the special "outside" fund which brought an additional $20,000 into the area.

Smithfield Registration Set Tomorrow

Parents are required to come with their children. Birth certificate and certificate of successful vaccination are required.

Jury Hears McGlinchey

SCRANTON, Aug. 14 (AP)—Former Philadelphia congressman Herbert J. McGlinchey made his second appearance today before the federal grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the construction of the 33 million dollar signal corps depot at Tobyhanna in the Pocono Mountain area.

McGlinchey testified about an hour before the jury.

He was accompanied by Atty. Robert C. Duffy, former Philadelphia City chairman McGlinchey is a Democrat.

Russia Denies Detaining Fliers

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Aug. 14 (AP)—Russia denied today that it is detaining any U.S. Air Force or Navy fliers from planes shot down by Soviet pilots.

The denial was in a note to the American Embassy from the Soviet Foreign Ministry. It replied to a U.S. note to Moscow July 16.

East Stroudsburg Borough Council

Council Approves Thruway

Weisenberger's letter. They insisted they were given an entirely different idea of the chief engineer's sentiment on the proposal, when they met with him in Harrisburg recently.

The text of the Weisenberger letter follows:

Contents

"In response to your letter of Aug. 8 relative to the proposed alignment for the Stroudsburg bypass, the department will appreciate council's taking action at the adjourned meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 14 affirming the line presently proposed.

"As you are aware, our Assistant Chief Engineer Van Riper and I met with the E. Brown St. group on Tuesday, July 31, to consider a shift in the line as proposed by them. A member of borough council was among the group and the impression was given that the entire council of the Borough of East Stroudsburg desired revision of the line. As a result of this meeting in Harrisburg, District Engineer (Edwin J.) Greenwald and Assistant District Engineer (Theodore) Henderson attended your Aug. 6 council meeting for the purpose of discussing the entire matter with you.

"Since that time, our engineers have studied intensively the line shift as proposed by the E. Brown St. group, and it is the consensus of opinion that this is not feasible. One important complicating factor is the Catholic cemetery, where a number of graves would be disturbed if the highway were located according to the suggested line shift. This department will absolutely not consider. Another disadvantage is the terrain along the DL&W railroad tracks to which property a large volume of surface drainage from the new highway would have to be discharged. This would involve complications with the railroad company which we wish to preclude. The steep slopes resulting from our construction along this section would also be a difficult condition to control.

"One of the factors in our studies which dictated the adoption of the line recommended by us was the serviceability of the proposed interchange in the Prospect St. area. We felt that this was an important advantage to the Borough of East Stroudsburg and which borough council desired. The E. Brown St. group would involve the loss of the interchange at Prospect St. and the nearest similar facility would be the interchange to be provided at Minisink Hills which is beyond the borough limits.

"The original line adopted by the department was the result of the most searching and careful analysis of all of the factors involved. We are convinced that this alignment is the one which will best serve through traffic as well as local traffic. In addition, this alignment is immediately accessible from both boroughs—a point greatly in its favor.

"I am informed that the majority of the people in both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg favor the projected line and our decision, is, therefore, that no revision will be adopted.

"Please reassure the E. Brown St. group that the department has given proper consideration to their suggestions but that in designing modern highways we must always be governed by sound engineering practice. The interests and safety of all of the people of the Commonwealth must always transcend those of the few who may be inconvenienced or whose property may be damaged by an improvement."

YMCA Bids Farewell To Chopp

DIRECTORS OF the Monroe County YMCA entertained at an informal farewell party last night in honor of Carlton C. Chopp, youth director, who is leaving soon to become youth director of the Euclid Branch of the Cleveland, O., YMCA.

The event took place in the second floor dining room of the YMCA and was attended by a number of directors, their wives and several members of the Barrett Branch YMCA, where Chopp also served as executive.

Alex Bensinger, chairman of the youth committee, presided and presented Mr. and Mrs. Chopp with a desk set as a farewell gift from the board.

Several persons spoke informally and paid tribute to Chopp's accomplishments during the three years he has served in Monroe County.

Prise

Rev. Harold N. MacMurray, representing the Barrett Branch, said Chopp had built up a fine organization and generated considerable interest during his tenure as Barrett Branch executive.

John R. Wilson, general secretary of the county YMCA, declared it will be difficult to find someone with the same capabilities to replace Chopp and said he will be missed by hundreds of local young people who have been helped by the youth director.

"We hate to lose him," Wilson added, "but in leaving he takes with him the best wishes of all of us and the community for success in his new work."

E. Holt Wyckoff, past president of the board, said the heartfelt thanks of everyone here goes out to Chopp for the good work he has done in Monroe County.

In response, Chopp said his brief period of service in this area has been a "wonderful experience" and was glad to hear that his efforts have meant something to the young people and adults with whom he has worked.

In his new job, Chopp will be located in a city of 60,000 persons and in a new building being constructed to house both the YMCA and YWCA.

New State Law Permits Fire Levy On Tax-Free Properties

ONE SECTION OF A NEW State law permits local taxing bodies to assess previously tax-free organizations for fire taxes.

The law is Act 677. It went into effect on June 1 this year. Copies of the act were distributed locally during the past month by the Department of Internal Affairs.

According to Section 702, Article 3: "... Property which is now exempt from existing law shall not be exempt from the fire protection assessment, whether this assessment is administered as a tax or as a special assessment."

One Monroe County township notably affected by the article in Act 677 will be Stroud Township. This district is the area in which Pinebrook Camp is located.

Pinebrook was the winner this year in a decision handed down by Judge Fred W. Davis. The jurist ruled that the camp is a religious, non-profit corporation and therefore non-taxable.

Stroud Township has a two-mill fire tax which is distinctly labeled for that purpose in assessments made by the district. It is one of the few Monroe County districts to levy such a tax.

Blue Valley Farm Show Opens Today

BANGOR—Judges begin putting their mark of approval this morning on entries in the 11th annual Blue Valley Farm Show.

Sponsored by Bangor Exchange Club this show will be held in the Farm Show grounds on the Bangor-Pen Argyl road. Exhibits in the show come from pupils of joint high schools in both these areas. Numerous prizes and cash awards are offered in the annual show. First judging begins at 11 a.m. with exhibits of garden, home economics and industrial arts work.

Highlight

The show's highlight event—judging of heifer and swine entries—will take place from noon to 4 p.m. today. All prizes will be presented at the show's finale on Saturday.

This year's show is dedicated to Millard Gleim, secretary of the Bangor Exchange Club. Tonight at 8 there will be an amateur show featuring acts from the area. There will be a pet parade at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

The Monroe County Band will provide the featured entertainment Friday night at 8 on the farm show grounds with a full-length concert. On Saturday, presentation of prizes will be followed by a band program by Willis Meyers and his Range Riders, at 8 p.m. company official, said that the new law would prove "very beneficial" to the township in the administration of fire protection.

Other districts of Monroe would presumably also be advantageously affected by the new act if taxing bodies choose to levy a fire protection tax. Tax-free corporations own land in nearly every section of the county. Until the passage of Act 677 the tax-free ruling was interpreted as applying to all phases of taxation.

Handy Vegetable Bin Easy Project For Home Workshop

A HANDY VEGETABLE bin for a pantry corner is an easy project for the home workshop. Finished with enamel, it takes on a professional appearance and is easy to keep clean.

Three boxes about 4 inches deep are made of 1/2-inch lumber, and are mounted on long double legs. The boxes are 12 to 14 inches square, but jointed. Each leg consists of two pieces of lumber, each 1/2 by 36 inches. The bin may be fastened together with 1/4-inch brads or No. 2 flathead wood screws.

Ventilating Fans Remove Water Vapor

MANY HOUSES are inadequately ventilated by natural means and, as a result structural damage may result from excessive moisture trapped indoors. In designing all houses, adequate ventilation should be considered.

Kitchen ventilating fans are an excellent means of removing excessive water vapor that results from cooking. The same kind of fan can aid with the removal of excessive moisture from the parts of the house where bathing and laundering create vapor. Highly desirable, of course, is a ventilating system which would begin to operate automatically as soon as the relative humidity in a house reached the safe maximum.

Such a system would relieve the home owner of the responsibility for constantly watching relative humidity to avoid excesses.

Cleaning Depends On Type Tile

How you clean the walls in your kitchen and bath depends on what sort of tile you have, suggests Katherine Bailey, home management specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Old standby ceramic tile has a permanent finish, and you clean it with a mild detergent and damp cloth. Gritty cleaning powders may scratch and dull the finish. To keep the tile clean longer, give it a good coat of wax.

In enameled metal tiles it's even more important not to use gritty powders, because the finish is baked on over the metal. Once the metal is exposed, you'll have a different color showing.

Metal
Clean metal tile just as you would ceramic tile. It can be waxed, too. Both aluminum and steel backings are used for making tile. Each metal is durable and rustproof, and you can put this tile on yourself.

Clean plastic tile with a mild detergent, and then it's a good idea to sponge it with full strength liquid detergent. Let it dry, and then buff it to give a shine. The coat of detergent keeps dust from collecting—one of the problems of plastic tile.

Clean less commonly used stainless-steel tile by wiping with a damp cloth or sponge. It shows water marks, so work with care.

Pay Attention To Little Details

IF YOU'RE building a new home, remember that attention to little details can really pay off in the years ahead. Take the matter of tub hangers.

They're the small supports attached to wall studs and serve to anchor the bathroom tub permanently in place. Without them, the tub may tend to pull away from the tile wainscot when the room settles.

Window Walls Grow In Popularity

Picture windows and window walls in the kitchen are among the more popular innovations in new houses, according to Frank Sohn, building consultant to Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company.

Sohn said the emphasis on indoor-outdoor unity and with patios and play areas frequently opening off the kitchen, mothers want the larger windows to keep an eye on the youngsters at play and they like the feeling of spaciousness which larger kitchen windows provide.

Sliding
In addition to the sliding glass doors which are steadily growing in popularity, Sohn said housewives like a picture window right over the sink.

These windows frequently are glazed with double insulating glass which collects far less condensation in winter than do single glass windows, according to Sohn, and which retards heat gain in summer and heat loss in winter.

Young Members Draw Attention

MANUFACTURERS of bathroom equipment are beginning to give more attention to the younger members of the family.

Small lavatories mounted close to the floor, junior size water closets and even baby toilets are available now, encouraging youngsters to develop proper bathroom habits. At the children grow, these miniature fixtures can be replaced easily with adult facilities.

Pothook Valuable

A pothook should be used to hold the paint pail when painting from a ladder. The Institute for Safer Living attributes many painful accidents to falling paint buckets.

High Fuel Bills Prove Unnecessary

Many home-owners will play unnecessarily high fuel bills this winter because gaps in the insulation barrier protecting their homes will allow heat to escape. A continuous blanket of insulation must be tucked in all around.

Sometimes an out-of-the-way place such as the floor above an unheated garage, the wall separating the garage from the house itself, or the roof over an exposed porch may be overlooked when a house is insulated. If so, an insulation contractor can blow mineral wool into these areas without damaging the home.

Insulation
Attics can be completely insulated in the do-it-yourself tradition. Mineral wool batts or blankets are stapled between roof rafters and collar joists, but the result won't be completely satisfactory if knee walls, gable-end walls, the cheeks and ceilings of dormer windows, or other areas are left bare of insulation.

Wall 'Sealer' Stops Suction

A "SEALER" for a wall surface is designed to stop the suction that sometimes causes subsequent coats of paint to dry with a mottled appearance.

Sealer for plaster walls is usually an alkali-resistant varnish which is used either clear or lightly pigmented. Sealer for wallboard or other highly porous surfaces is a very highly pigmented finish designed to fill the pores and prevent a non-porous surface for subsequent coats.

A sealer is usually applied as the first coat on the surface to be painted.

Europe Shows Little Interest In Conventions

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

Reports from Europe have it that there isn't much interest there in the American political conventions.

In 1952 there was worry. Europe was about as satisfied with American foreign policy as it ever is and, although Dwight Eisenhower was a popular figure there, no change was desired.

Since then Eisenhower has become one of the central figures in Europe's hopes for peace. American foreign policy has not changed; and Europe is now satisfied that the Republican and Democratic labels don't mean much to them.

In Stride

They are more able to take in stride—as most Americans do too in these later years—the stories of ruin told at Chicago last night, and the predictions of worse which will be made at San Francisco next week when the possibility of a Democratic victory is mentioned.

Europeans will never quite understand the gyrations of American politics, any more than Americans will understand those of, say, France.

But one Berlin paper seems to have gotten some idea. Trying to explain the political symbols of the Donkey and the Elephant, it said:

"They are not beasts of prey. After the political campaign they will jointly and peacefully pull the carts of the nation."

And, it might have added, when

Willard has just completed serving a seven-and-a-half month sentence in New Jersey, imposed as a result of a break in Warren County, State Police said.

Provisions Of Soil Bank Program To Be Discussed

A MEETING to discuss provisions of the 1957 Soil Bank Program will be held tomorrow at the Hotel Sterling, Wilkes-Barre, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee chairman announced yesterday.

Representatives of agricultural agencies in Monroe County who will attend the meeting include: David H. Griffith, chairman; Donald Reish, John R. Smith, ASC Committeemen; Jacob Kintz, Dept. of Forest and Waters. The meeting is one of a series being held throughout the state to explain the new Soil Bank Program for the 1957 crop year.

Unlike the 1956 Soil Bank program, which was limited to the Acreage Reserve program for the "basic" or "allotment" crops because the program was made available so late in the growing season, the 1957 program will offer farmers an opportunity before planting to plan their operations so as to take full advantage of the assistance provided.

The program is an effort to help farmers reduce their production of tilled crops, thereby adjusting output closer to market demand.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Scientists may understand how come plants, animals and humans have a sort of built-in calendar. Something to do with the changing amount of ultra violet rays or something probably. All I can do is observe the results.

The first leaves turn brown and fall, the birds line up on telephone poles and start practicing formation flying, and all of a sudden people stop acting like summer.

The sun may be bright and hot, the water inviting; but nobody shows any enthusiasm for swimming. It may be the humidest day of the summer but the dark cottons start appearing on the streets, and with sleeves, too.

The vacationists are vacationing like mad, but the homefolks all of a sudden start nagging about the kids getting to meals on time and doing a little work around here and about the number of towels which have disappeared.

The weather doesn't look any different, the days don't feel different, the calendar still says summer but whatever we have to correspond to chlorophyll seems has started to ferment or whatever it does.

It's not a voluntary thing. We aren't tired of summer, of which we've had precious little this year. We aren't looking forward to schedules, and meetings, and a lot of hard work, not yet. But we're getting ready in spite of ourselves.

Visitor Wins Family Which Didn't Want An American

(Miss Helen Donaldson, a student at Pembroke College, who is spending the summer with a Norwegian family as an Experiment in International Living Group, writes further of her impressions.)

Oso, Norway — I am thinking of buying ski boots here. After all, I was planning to buy a pack and can borrow one from my family instead, and Bjorn thinks I can get good boots for about the price I would have paid for the pack—much better ones than I could get for anything like an equivalent price in the States. He thinks I should get skis, too, and he's probably right, except for the difficulty of getting them home.

Yes, the hike was wonderful; yes, we ate on the way—water for about two hours and cooled the Norwegian version of hot dogs, which are really sausage, and coffee. We hike for about ten miles, spending five hours in hiking, and I did wear my "Ladies Maine Guide Boots," which didn't give me any trouble.

Our Paris reservations have been confirmed—at the Friends Centre. We are having trouble only with one night in Amsterdam and I'm sure we can get something.

I think I am becoming a member of the family—last night I was allowed to wash the dishes while all the other kids played badminton, etc! Mor did stick with me and dried. And then they wouldn't surrender a badminton racket to me though I asked—previously I have always been offered the opportunity! I found out something very interesting yesterday which I am extremely glad I didn't know before. Nancy told me that this family did not

ATTRACTIVE ARRANGEMENTS

In arranging a room, aim for convenience, comfort and unity. Begin with conversation groupings with the main one near the room's center of interest. Avoid water-cornered arrangements where large pieces are involved; they waste space and look awkward. Leave lanes for traffic. In most rooms, formal and informal arrangements can be mixed and an all-over harmonious effect achieved.

Whether your home reflects a formal or informal theme, we are prepared to equip your windows with the shades or blinds that will do justice to every room. There is no obligation for information, expert advice and estimates at the Monroe County General Flooring Co., 914 North Ninth Street, Stroudsburg. Phone 568-3.

Supper at Blakeslee

Blakeslee — The Blakeslee Women's Society of Christian Service is sponsoring a turkey supper at the Blakeslee Community House on Thursday, August 16. Serving will be from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Cloth dyed with indigo has been found in a 3,000-year-old Egyptian tomb.

If it is true that things of beauty are a joy forever, this past Saturday will certainly linger with me as long as memory endures. In the afternoon there was the advance showing of fall fashions by a well-known fashion house, on the delightfully cool Green Terrace of Shawnee Inn. In the evening there was the indescribably magnificent music of more than a hundred young musicians and singers who were completing an eventful week at the Waring Workshop. As an extra dividend, there was my meeting with three delightful people—Terry Mayer, a fashion coordinator, and Sylvia Guyer of Altoona, who, with her friend Charlotte Stump, was among the high school pupils participating in the Waring concert.

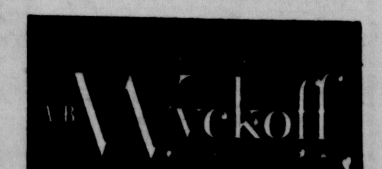

Miss Mayer, who is slim, smart, and brunette, was one of the most gracious persons I have encountered in all my typewriter-driven life. Her job is a fascinating one that takes her all over the country telling women's organizations "How to Dress Like a Million Without Spending It." In her work, she stages 250 or more fashion shows a year in behalf of her company, which is the oldest manufacturer of ready made apparel in our country. Ranging in price upwards from $9.95, these fashions are shown in better stores everywhere... We do not, of course, carry too many ensembles with this label, for the simple reason that the vast percentage of our customers shop the more moderate price range... but we are able to special order these creations when they are desired, and, as a result of the Shawnee show, five of the loveliest ensembles were purchased through Wyckoff's for one of our finest customers.

A young woman who obviously enjoys her work and is proud of the company she represents, Miss Mayer was pleasantly agreeable when I suggested she meet me at WVFW and tape record a fashion interview. Not only did she do so, relinquishing precious time she might otherwise have spent in the Shawnee Inn pool, but she was as charming as I was embarrassed when we discovered the tape was absolutely no good and not a word had registered. Once again we ran through it... and it was the second tape that was broadcast Monday.

If you did not hear it, I'd like to repeat two points Terry stressed. One was the wearing of a proper foundation garment when selecting a wardrobe. No figure is a perfect figure, she said, and a well fitted foundation is an absolute essential. Also, all ready made clothing should be fitted to the individual purchaser with meticulous attention to give it a custom made look.

These fine fashions are casual, comfortable, and utterly elegant. The fabrics have an expensive handloomed look, and the design is formed by the weave rather than by a print or a contrasting color. Sheath lines and the gently flared skirt are the two leading silhouettes, and many of the sheaths have two short kick pleats in the back of the skirt, rather than one in the center. Colors are muted by a careful blending of two or more hues in the weave. There are neck-bolers effects achieved by a high beltline or flange... and there are tiny tapered boleros that stand away from the body, creating the illusion of slenderness. Madeira-type embroidery prettifies some of the tailored wool dresses... so do tailored tabs of material, self-fringe, flat bows, and bright buttons. A mink collar is the supremely elegant touch to a trouser-seam-perfect brown suit. One jumper, cut very low in back and snugly fitted through the midriff, was worn with a demure boy-shirt of white, but was recommended as a stunning cocktail dress with a big brilliant pin replacing the blouse. Startling too were the Glamour Gains of vivid blue made of Hellanca stretch yarns. These reach to the hip and match the tailored blouse, for wear with kilt skirt, Bermuda shorts, and such. They are ideal for marketing, lounging, campus wear.

And now, on to the concert! Under the magic Waring baton, more than 135 youngsters, coming from all sections of the country and Canada, played and sang their hearts out. "Youth Sings" was the theme... and youth was singing songs of love, tender enough to melt a heart of stone... songs of faith... songs of the south... and songs of love. And everyone was happy! As Sylvia Guyer said, "The workshop has been the most wonderful thing that ever happened to us." The same might be said by the audience about the concert.

Suspense Marks 'Tea And Sympathy'

MOUNTAINHOME — Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy" is one of the finest modern American plays.

It is well-constructed, intellectually honest, suspense-filled drama. More than anything else, it is a serious play built on one of the most pertinent themes of our time — the ability of one man or a group of men to "smear" another by filthy implication and innuendo.

In the case of "Tea and Sympathy," the person whose reputation is deliberately crushed in the brutal machinery of gossip is a young man. His name is Tom Lee and, because he is seen swimming with an instructor in the boarding school he attends, Tom is accused of homosexuality. Other instructors at the school have "suspected" David Harris before. In Tom's case the accusation is totally false. Nothing happened.

Yet the sheer force of the charge is enough to corrode Tom's life from the moment it is first made. Harris is informed that he will not be on the faculty the next year. But there is no "easy way out" for Tom. His father — a rah-rah boy who attends the school and was an "athletic team manager" — is determined Tom will stay and fight this thing out. Tom stays, fights and, in the end, very nearly loses his biggest battle — the war with his own fear through suicide after a sordid and ill-fated attempt to make love to a waitress who has had "affairs" with a large percentage of the school's all-boy population.

Theme
Against this tormented theme of Tom Lee's struggle to find "manhood," Anderson has set a sardonic, contrapuntal symphony of bully-boy tactics, false masculinity, father-selfishness and hatred born of insecurity. Fighting his way through each of these harsh chords of dissonance is the play's dominant and final triumphant honesty — the miraculous beauty of Love.

For at the center of his story, Anderson has placed the understanding form and heart of Laura Reynolds. Laura is the wife of Tom's house master — Bill Reynolds. Bill is a mountain climber, a "man's man," a "regular guy," an organizer, a man who spent most of his life as a bachelor and married Laura with no clear realization of why he was doing so. Bill Reynolds is Tom's chief persecutor. He is an adult with the undernourished intellect of a back-alley bully whose worst crime still is not in his vindictive attitude toward Tom but in his traitorous failure to look inside his own mind and soul.

Adding to the play's strength are the blunt, often brutal characterizations of other boys in the house and the callous weaknesses of Tom's father and his roommate. In the betrayal of Tom by Herb Lee and Al, the athletic roommate who has liked and understood the boy's sensitivity until the time of the accusation, lies the most pertinent and poignant part of the play's tragic overtone. On the scale of manhood Herb Lee, Bill Reynolds and Al run a fast footrace for the bottom rung on the ladder. It would be hard to tell which one emerges as low man.

In Laura, Anderson has created one of the finest roles for an actress in years. Dominant without being domineering, Laura Reynolds is an astonishing, transcendent figure in a small world filled with small men and petty motives. Even though she lacks strength to fight all of the wrong she sees around her, Laura is the only character in the play who is capable of selflessness. She is a great because of that.

At Pocono Playhouse this week, "Tea and Sympathy" is being given a magnificent, emotionally shattering performance which is, in some respects, much stronger than the Broadway production of the play. This is partly true because of the quality of the acting, direction and the scenic design and partly because of the size of the theater in which it is seen.

The Playhouse is far more intimate than most New York theaters. And "Tea and Sympathy" is, above all, an intimate, communicative play. To reach its full peak of effectiveness, Anderson's play needs a strong, constant bond between itself and the audience. As the shifting currents of its light beginning swirl toward the emotional whirlpool that lies at its center, the audience must become a part of what happens onstage. When Tom Lee's mind is pulled under by the dark waters of doubt into which he has been crumpled and thrown, his personal disaster hangs like a bright knife before the viewer's vision.

Direction
John O'Shaughnessy's direction of the play is without any flaw whatever. Given a brilliant script to work with and a cast made up of large part of veterans of the New York production he has delivered one of the best-staged and most powerful dramas in years. Ballou's set — adapted freely from the design used for the Broadway production — is better in several ways than was his honored forerunner. The set is remarkably functional, attractive and restricted in its use of space to give the illusion of foreboding and the web of Fate. Step by step the superiority of O'Shaughnessy's direction and Ballou's scenic design is matched by imaginative lighting by Leland Watson. This is especially true in the last scene in which the dimming light is eloquent and indispensable to the establishment of the play's elemental meaning.

Mary Fickett has created "Laura Reynolds" in the mold of the New York production. Miss Fickett understudied both Deborah Kerr and Joan Fontaine in the lead there. She also played the role herself many times. At Pocono she is giving a beautiful, haunting performance constructed with lovely and deliberate care from the torn shreds of intuition and human feeling. Richard Franchot sustains excellent balance in his interpretation of Tom. It is a strong characterization of a difficult role. With the exception of an occasional uncertainty in mood on opening night it was a thoroughly believable Tom Lee.

The play's two most unsympathetic parts are handled very well by Karl Weber, who plays Reynolds and Edwin Whitner, as Mr. Lee. Weber is particularly good in his final scene with Laura. Of the others, cast in more minor roles, I thought Joyce Ballou was outstanding as a prattling, flirtatious master's wife who sets the pace for the play's frequent comic asides. Fredric Walters is seen briefly and with solid effect as "Harris," a fragmentary role carefully lined-in by the actor's subtle approach to it. Rounding out the cast are John Napier, whose "Al" is competent and — in one scene between the two roommates — more than that; Richard Stauffer, Dean Reeder, Jimmie Christie and Richard Wolfington.

"Tea and Sympathy" has been described as a play on a "delicate" theme. It has also been called "controversial." It is, presumably, both of these things. But it is, beyond this, an excellent play and an important one.

At the end of the play Laura Reynolds — who has watched her marriage crumble around her feet and is left holding the falling ashes (Please turn to page sixteen)

A CHARLOTTE, N. C. sports writer covering the Hornets in the Sally League lauded Reddy's Harry Warner and two of his teammates no end in a recent article in the Dixie newspaper.

Commenting on the .625 pace Charlotte has been maintaining in the last half of the season, the Southern scribe said:

"The feeling of Manager Rollo Hensley, the reformed roller of at least a half dozen major league clubs, is that the addition of first baseman Harry Warner, third baseman Harmon Killebrew, the Washington bonus beauty, and catcher Joe Mantoalvo has turned a floundering crew into dangerous one."

Shortstop Gene Verbie, another Nat castoff, also voiced, "I wish we had started the season with the team we have now."

According to the writer the results of team play the final half of the Sally season show the Hornets with a 22 won and 11 lost clip, and coping 11 of their last 13 games. If, the writer notes, the Sally League had a split season, Charlotte would be leading the circuit by one game.

As of now, Charlotte is tied for second place, trailing certain champion Jacksonville. It is the loftiest perch the Hornets have held all season and Warner and his mates are termed responsible for the "shot in the arm."

Incidentally, Harry, the former Peconia Twp. High luminary, was the key man in the recent rise, hammering out a couple of homers and clinching the drive with a two-run triple in the Hornets' 4-3 victory that got them knotted in second place.

Harry is batting in the No. 3 spot ahead of Killebrew, the Senators hope for future stardom.

Don Abbott, resident of the State Belt, got one of these one in a million shots the other day when he sank a hole in one at Glen Brook Country Club's course.

Abbott, using a seven iron, looped in his ace on the 16th hole.

Elmer Possinger, the tire expert, continues to make a name for himself in the motor boat racing field. Last Sunday at annual Harvey's Lake Regatta, Possinger came in second in the "D" Utility Class.

Heading the field was Frank Pontious, of Hummel's Wharf, Sunbury. Pontious, by the way, has won every race he's entered in competition this year.

However, by his recent showing, Possinger is making a bid to end the reign of the Sunbury chauffeur.

Joe Ference, Quick Restaurant aide, has forced one of his regular players of his three-some to abandon links play and has started the other to wondering when he joined the duo on the course decked out in Bermuda shorts.

Bypassing the game because of progressive men's wear was Dick Melick, the milkman who forgot to keep the bottles quiet. The ponderer is Stan Siproth, Jake Enelow's chief of staff.

Mays' Homer Leads Giants Past Dodgers

BROOKLYN, Aug. 14 (AP)—Willie Mays' two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted the last-place Giants into a 3-1 victory tonight over Brooklyn's second-place Dodgers.

Willie's 20th homer of the season, blasted into the left-field seats off relief pitcher Clem Labine, capped a three-run frame for the Giants after the Dodgers had broken a scoreless duel between Sal Maglie and Jim Hearn in the seventh on a walk, a sacrifice and Junior Gilliam's double.

Maglie, facing his old mates for the first time, had held the Giants to four hits, walking two and striking out four, before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

Waste No Time
The Giants wasted no time getting to Labine, Brooklyn's relief ace who now has a 9-4 record. Daryl Spencer led off the eighth with a single and Hank Thompson, batting for Hearn, got a double.

When his hit got away from Gino Cimoli, who had just been put into the lineup as a defensive move in right field.

The tying run scored on Jackie Brandt's infield out, setting up Mays' homer.

Hearn's 5th
Hearn, winning his fifth in 16 decisions, gave up five hits and five walks while holding the Dodgers to their lone run. Marv Grissom mopped up, getting Gilliam on a game-ending grounder with runners on third and first. Gilliam started in right for the Dodgers in place of Carl Furillo, the club's lone .300 hitter, who was bedded down with fever. Gilliam moved to left field in the eighth.

Romps Over Methodists 23-5; Fish, Vinyard Star In Clash

R. C. CRAMER NAILED down the second half pennant in the East Stroudsburg Little League last night, blasting Methodist Church 23-5.

A 13-run outburst in the second inning all but put the game on ice for the Cramermen.

Norm Fish hurled the clinching victory for the Lumber Boys, stopping the Methodists on three hits. However, one of the big blows was a home run with the bases loaded by Jack Vinyard.

Fish also led his mates at bat, connecting for four hits in five trips to the plate. Vinyard collected two-for-two for the losers.

The league will close out its regular season tomorrow when the

Nelson's HR Paces Cards Over Braves

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 14 (AP)—Rocky Nelson's pinch-hit home run and the steady pitching of veteran Murry Dickson lifted the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the league-leading Milwaukee Braves tonight.

Nelson belted a 3-2 pitch to the right-field pavilion roof off starter and loser Bob Buhl in the sixth inning to put the Cards into a 3-2 lead that would have held up all the way. He scored behind Bobby Morgan.

Third Homer
It was Rock's third homer, two as a pinch hitter, since coming to the Cardinals from Brooklyn about two weeks ago.

Post's 22nd Ends Redlegs Win Drought

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (AP) — Wally Post unloaded his 22nd home run of the campaign today to power pennant-contending Cincinnati to a 2-0 decision over the Chicago Cubs and end a string of three losses hung on the Redlegs by pace-setting Milwaukee.

Post's blast into left-center field bleachers of Wrigley Field came in the fourth inning and marred an otherwise fine six-hit pitching chore for the Cubs' 21-year-old rookie, Don Kaiser. It was his sixth setback against three victories.

Nuxhall Wins

Joe Nuxhall was in to the finish for his second shutout of the season and his first victory since July 22. He boosted his record to 8-6 with a neat five-hit job, striking out four, serving only one walk and only once permitting a Cub to reach third.

$20,000 Race Saturday At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — The racing bill of fare at the Atlantic City Race Course this week will be highlighted by the renewal of the $20,000 added Pageant Stakes Saturday. The Pageant, first of six turf fixtures on the stakes schedule is exclusively for three-year-old fillies and is run at one mile.

Heading the list of 23 nominees is Baylor O. Hickman's Laska who racked up a victory skid of six before being stopped in the Miss Woodford Stakes. Her major score of the year came in the Betsy Ross this spring at Garden State.

East Acres' Cosm has won two races this season and seeks her first major triumph of the year in the Pageant. Her juvenile year was impressive with a total of $57,295 earnings. She was a yearling record show of $7,000. Her two-year-old record shows a victory in the Astoria, runner-up award in the Gardania and third award in the Frizette.

Another Choice

Land O Liberty would be another stout factor in the Pageant. This sister of La Corredora has won three of nine races this year and captured the New England Futurity last season.

Tournure from the stable of Mrs. J. M. Branham has met top-flight company all year. Her best effort came in the Kentucky Oaks where she finished third behind Princess Auria and Doubledogdare.

Mabe Cee is another hard-hitting miss with plenty of early speed. She forced the pace in the Black Eyed Susan, won by Princess Turia and was beaten by a head by Levee, Monmouth Oaks winner, is an allowance test at Jamaica. Mabe Cee represents the Colonnade Farms.

Other Entries

Other topflight talent on the Pageant roster include C. T. Chenery's Scansion, Darby Dan Farm's Most Arden, Elkcam Stable's Rich And Rare, Natalie Feinberg's Accolade, Janet Kelly's Hi and Fair, Clifford Moores' Cherry, John S. Kroese's Navira and Xavier Farm's Cele's Pet.

200-Lap Feature At Dorney Friday

ALLENTOWN — A 200-lap team championship race, featuring all of the top winners in previous events here this season, is booked for the fifth of a mile asphalt track at Dorney Park here Friday night.

Race drivers who have been cutting each other's throats on the local track all season have been busy during the past week pairing up with drivers they think stand a chance of taking down the $1500 purse of money, Friday.

Of the active New York major league players Willie Mays holds the highest batting average for one season. He hit .345 in 1954. Brooklyn's Carl Furillo hit .344 in 1953.

22 Set To Try Channel Swim

FOLKSTONE, England, Aug. 14 (AP) — Twenty-two swimmers from 16 nations left the English Coast for France in boats tonight with the intention of coming back the hard way — by swimming the tricky 22-mile stretch of water.

The annual mass English Channel race was due to start from Cap Gris Nez at 8:40 p.m. EST tomorrow.

But this time last year's winner, Abdel Latis Abou Heif, an Egyptian, was not among the starters. The British holiday camp firm,

Sugar Ray, Jim Norris Spar At Long Range To No Verdict

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP) — Middleweight champion Ray Robinson and President Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club sparred again at long range today in another no-decision contest.

Nothing definite was settled, although a lot of talk came from both sides in the verbal war.

Robinson said yesterday he was "finished" with the IBC and expected to sign today for a title defense for Promoter Cal Eaton in Los Angeles, Sept. 24 or 25. The opponent eager and ready is Utah's Gene Fullmer.

"We're all set to fight for Eaton in Los Angeles as soon as we get the television details settled," said George Gainford, Robinson's spokesman for the day. Sugar Ray said the same thing yesterday. Robinson was busy training at his Greenwood Lake camp so big George did the talking.

Popping Off

"I think Ray is just popping off," said Norris at an impromptu press conference at the IBC offices. "He can get as much or more money fighting for us — he can $120,000 to $140,000 — as he can get on the Coast. I think the fight belongs here."

Asked about Robinson's statement that he was "finished" with the IBC, Norris replied:

"He's never told us. We're not going to break relations with Robinson even if he breaks with us. He owes us too much money."

Asked how much, Norris said "Ask Truman."

$10 To $12,000

"About $10,000 to $12,000," said Truman Gibson, IBC secretary.

Norris said he'd like to put the fight on at the Yankee Stadium, September 24, 25 or 26, but added:

"We're not going to wait much longer. We'll have to let the Yankees know soon since they want those dates to fill in for rained out games. The next move is up to Ray."

Wrestling Clinic Features 'Rivals'

BETHLEHEM — Three rival coaches of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association will team up next week to give pointers to more than 100 scholastic and collegiate wrestlers selected for the 21st annual wrestling clinic at Lehigh University.

The clinic is directed by Gerald Leeman, Lehigh mat mentor. Two of his chief opponents will join him in demonstrations and practice drills. They are Joseph McDaniel, Syracuse University wrestling coach, and Richard Voliva, Rutgers University mat director. All three won national titles while collegians and were on American wrestling squads competing in Europe.

Paul E. Short, business manager of athletics, announced today that the final clinic session, to get under way August 20, will bring another 150 matmen to the Lehigh campus, scene of Eastern and national championship wrestling tournaments in the past 30 years.

Way Back, When

BETHLEHEM — In 1889, Lehigh University recorded its most one-sided football victory. The Engineers humbled Penn State by a score of 106-0. Touchdowns counted only four points in those days.

Favorite for the men's prize of $1,400 is Canadian Tom Park of Hamilton, Ont., who is swimming for the United States. Park, a husky 32-year-old, now lives in Lakewood, Calif., and is sponsored by an American firm. Last year he finished second in a close finish with the Egyptian winner.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP) — In the last 36 years the United States has swept 27 of 28 Olympic diving titles. From the 1924 games on, Uncle Sam's kings and queens of the springboard and platform have carried away gold medals.

'Fired' Reds Snap Track, Swim Marks

MOSCOW, Aug. 14 (AP) — Russian athletes, burning from severe criticism from Communist officials, broke out today in a spurge of superlative performances that included world records in track and swimming events.

As the huge Soviet Spartakiad sports festival neared its end, Semyon Zhishchin of Moscow bettered the world record for the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a time of 8:39.8. Then four Russian swimmers clipped nearly a second off the Japanese-held world mark for the 400-meter medley relay swim with a 4:14.8 time.

Third Record

Today's feat by Zhishchin was the third world track and field mark set during the sports festival in the past 10 days. It was the first of any great importance. The others were in the seldom-contested women's pentathlon and in the 20-kilometer walk—held over a road course instead of around a uniform track.

The Russian runner, unknown in international competition, surpassed the world record of 8:40.2 established last September by Jerzy Chromik of Poland, and bettered by more than 5 seconds the Olympic standard of 8:45.4 made by America's Horace Ashenfelter at Helsinki in 1952.

Politician's Life Tough

By ARTHUR EDSON
CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP)—A politician's life is no bed of roses, and this Democratic National Convention proves it.
What does every politician want most of all?
Why to get on television, of course, so that millions—or is it billions?—of people will see, hear and rush right out and vote for him.
Great Chance
Well, he works and struggles with long strings and finally he has it made—a spot on the program at the convention. Mama, I'll knock 'em dead.
Then the great chance comes, and what happens?
This may be the time when the announcer is interviewing another and presumably more interesting politician. Or, worse still, he may be interviewing another announcer.
Or take the case of David A. Bunn of Denver, president of Young Democratic Clubs of America, earnest looking young man. Speaks with conviction. May be a comer.
So when he came on today a lady announcer was cuddling up to a refrigerator. From time to time thereafter the cameras switched to Bunn, who was fighting a courageous but losing battle.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Local Area To Receive First View At New Circus

FOR THE FIRST time in history, the Stroudsburgs will have the opportunity of seeing the premiere 1956 performances of the all-new Maley Three Ring Circus which will open Saturday at Stokes Mill on temporary Route 90. It's the first time in Stroudsburg history that circus patrons will have the privilege of passing judgment on the quality of the performance in advance of large city critics and news services.

Circus press agents are heralding the performance as being "new and dazzling" and say so with a great deal of pride, but they protest that modernization has not eliminated the atmosphere of the old time circus. Instead, Maley, owner and manager of the new show, has decreed that the program must adhere to the circus policy of bygone years—with the sawdust and spangles, high-in-the-air thrillers, aerial sensations, acrobatic displays, horse acts and for the youngsters—clowns, and more clowns and their clown animals.

New Talent
Among the new talent appearing with the new show will be the world renowned Zoppe Family of bareback riding champions from Italy, featuring Cuccinello Zoppe, billed as "The Aerial-Whirlwind Rider." The troupe, numbering seven people—five women and two men, are said to be one of Spangeland's most favored riding displays. European critics proclaim them "The Stars Of Stars."

Large Troupe

The thrilling Liberty Horse acts, and the tiny Shetland pony numbers. And, last but not far from least, the exciting elephant display in which the ponderous beasts perform intricate drills and formations under the command of beautiful young ladies in silk and rhinestone costumes, and one of those young ladies will be dainty Sandra Pettus, only eight years of age, the youngest "elephant girl" in the history of sawdust and spangles. She has appeared on the countless times on television on all networks during the past two years. Her last appearance was on the Ed Sullivan show in New York a short time ago. Her father is the illustrious Bert Pettus, noted trainer of handling of the huge lumbering beasts in the rings. Sandra is an outstanding feature.

The performances Saturday are scheduled to begin at 2 and 8 p.m.

It takes a GIANT to find distant stars

Giant 600-inch radio telescope at Naval Observatory combs the heavens for signals from sun, moon and stars.

Out of millions of stars, the radio telescope can pick out the electronic whisper of even the most distant stars. In like manner the newspaper seeks out your nearby and distant customers; for the newspaper is also a giant—a giant who lives in every town.

With newspaper circulation hitting an all-time high, almost every person in this community is exposed to your advertising message—when you speak through the daily newspaper.

If you are a retailer, wholesaler or distributor, you can get more local action from your customers by using the most effective local advertising medium—your daily newspaper. Your ad, side by side with that of the company whose products you sell, attracts with magnetic certainty throughout town and countryside.

The newspaper is a giant who lives in your town and every town. Put it to work seeking out prospects and customers NOW!

Show At Playhouse Scores Hit

of her own wasted love—tries to reassemble the shattered flesh of Tom's broken life with one quiet and tender action. Tenderness, she says, is as much a part of manliness as mountain-climbing and loud talk.

Those words are said softly and solemnly. Yet, one day, if the hand that presses at the cold trigger of a gun hesitates and relaxes and does not kill; if the finger poised over the button to release the world's most terrible destruction falters and refuses; if men can learn that it takes the "off-horse" the "different" boy to create and hold the world's proper balance—it will be because someone like Laura touched them in time.

Men must learn to live with themselves, yes. But even more than this, each man must learn to live with all the varied parts of himself and other men. This is the essence of "Tea and Sympathy."

Call it "delicate" or "controversial" if you like. Truth seldom fits the common mold of the things men choose to believe. Simply because Truth is almost never an article of comfort.
